

Jaime daCosta Robards

Jaime daCosta Robards joined Morehouse School of Medicine as the Office of Institutional Advancement's Director of Stewardship on November 30, 2015. Ms. Robards comes with a strong background in fundraising, marketing, and community relations. Since graduating college, she has pursued a career in nonprofits, eager to lift up underserved individuals and communities. She spent several years at the Montgomery Area Food Bank in Montgomery, Alabama, joining the team first as Development and Volunteer Program Coordinator and later moving to serve as the Fundraising and Marketing Supervisor. From there she joined Emory University as Assistant Director of Programs for the Laboratory of Biochemical Pharmacology. In addition to her full time positions, she has taken on a number of freelance projects for nonprofits throughout the region.

Ms. Robards earned her B.A. in History from Kennesaw State University.