

MSM Community Raises More than $10,000 to Support Future Classes on Giving Tuesday

On Tuesday, November 28, Morehouse School of Medicine (MSM) students and employees received a thank you for their support of future classes.

As part of Giving Tuesday, a national day to raise funds for nonprofits from coast to coast, MSM thanked those who made donations to scholarship funds during the campaign. A reception with fun, food, and music was held at the Billye Suber Aaron Pavilion. This was MSM's third year celebrating Giving Tuesday.

Donors were encouraged to contribute online ahead of the lunchtime gathering, however, money was also collected onsite from some of the more than 100 attendees.

In all, MSM raised more than $10,000 for Giving Tuesday. This money will go to support scholarships for future doctors and medical professionals.

"In establishing and maintaining a culture of giving, our efforts today can become a legacy of giving so that future biomedical scientists and medical professionals can become the future health leaders our country desperately needs," said second-year Ph.D. student Christopher De Vera.

There is still time to support our Giving Tuesday campaign. If you would like to make a donation, please visit our crowdfunding page by Friday, December 1. You may also visit our giving page to make a contribution to the school at any time.
