How do we measure depression remission at twelve months?

Adult patients age 18 and older with major depression or dysthymia and an initial PHQ-9 score >9 who demonstrate remission at twelve months defined as PHQ-9 score less than 5. This measure applies to both patients with newly diagnosed and existing depression whose current PHQ-9 score indicates a need for treatment.

Clinical Informatics Continued from Page 5

The Answer Is:

We created a PHQ-2 and a PHQ-9 templates.

We created clinical elements for depression screening using PHQ-2 capturing positive or negative responses.

We create a health maintenance name called depression screen to record the last depression screen date.

We created a lab called PHQ-2 to record and track all PHQ-2 scores.

We created a lab called PHQ-9 to record and track all PHQ-9 scores.

We improved and customized our depression template and nurse's note for a better management of depression following guidelines, evidence-based medicine and data mining.
